THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

Their Recent Meeting at Flemingsburg Interesting and Instructive.

MANY MEMBERS FROM THIS CITY THERE

The Proceedings of the Convention in Detail Up to Saturday Evening.

FRIDAY EVENING.

The services were led by Rev. W. D. Rice, and Miss Fannie Hendrick presided at the organ. After a short song service Brother Rice led in prayer, and Miss Hendrick favored the congregation with a very sweet solo, "Just as I am," after which Brother Tindler of Mayslick made a very impressive prayer. Then all joined in singing "For Christ and the Church," one of the mottoes of the society. As it was impossible for Dr. Overton to be present, Brother B. W. Mebane was asked to talk. He took for his subject the Christian Endeavor, but put especial emphasis on "For Christ and the Church," stating that its object was first for Christ; second, increased loyalty to the church. He illustrated this by the centripetal and centrifugal forces. He spoke of the united and individual church and said were we all united and believed alike "there would be a moral stagnation and that we agree to disagree. He said that he was like Paul in speaking of the head and body, that he considered Christ as the head and the church as the body, and that we were all united in this respect. He named some of the advantages of unity, among which were power. First when all were united and worked together the greater the power and illustrated it very prettily by a drop of rain. When one drop fell upon the earth its effect was not seen, but when a number fell they watered the dry earth and made it bring forth fruit. Just so the church needs a combination of work and purpose. Second, immaculate results accomplished and illustrated by the working of two machines. Very little could be accomplished with one while with several the task is soon finished. Also that wended a little oiling, like the machine to prevent friction, but still he held to the principle of individuality.

After Brother Mebane closed with amusing remarks, Dr. Hays was requested to make a short address, in which he said he came to the convention for enthusiasm, and that he still expected to remain as he had come, a Presbyterian. He said he believed in the Endeavor to make one stronger in his own church, and to stick all the closer to it and after emphasizing and speaking awhile on this subject closed with saying "it was an evidence of a great man to be brief, therefore he would make his talk short."

After this Brother Stanley offered prayer, and hymn No. 349 was sung. Then Brother Rice dismissed the meeting.

SATURDAY MORNING 6 O'CLOCK.

The 6 o'clock Prayer-meeting was led by Mr. W. R. Cady and Miss Anna Shackleford and not having any appointed lesson Miss Shackleford read II Cor. 7. The meeting was full of enthusiasm and life, each of the active members taking part and being interspersed with song, prayer and sentence prayer. After spending about three quarters of an hour at this service the meeting was dismissed.

At 10 o'clock the meeting convened and was led by Rev. W. D. Rice and after singing several songs Dr. Hays led in prayer, then hymn 113 was sung. Dr. James Hendrick delivered the welcome address in which he expressed himself as being particularly glad to entertain the Endeavorers and to welcome them into his midst. He said: "Although most of us were strangers to each other he was glad to extend the hospitality of Flemingsburg to us, for in this way in olden times many entertained angels unwares." He said that he welcomed us because he wanted to learn of them, that his society was rather in its infancy and was glad to get all of the ideas that are possible in this work. He closed bidding us God's welcome and God's speed in this work.

Brother Rice, the President, responded by accepting the hospitality extended to the delegates and saying he was glad to be met with them in this cause. He stated our object in coming as being to build up the Kingdom of the Lord, Jesus Christ, and that he expected it to be a blessing to them as well as those from other places.

After a prayer and song, the President gave his report of the Union, the principal feature of which was that the Union had been established but six months, yet it ranked second, that of Louisville being first.

Miss Carrie Taylor, Secretary of the Union reported fifteen senior societies in the district which composes the Union, and four juniors, thirteen of which belong to the Union and six do not. Miss Taylor's report being approved by the Treasurer, Miss Mary T. Andrews was called upon to give her report. She said that six societies had paid their assessment, leaving two, which had not, but that they had been notified.

The chairman of each committee made a report of the work done by the respective committees. The Lookout Committee deserves mention as it reported that nine societies had been organized since the convention in Augusta in April.

Miss Anna Pelham then read a good paper on "Our Pledge to Support Our Own Church," which was well written and brought forth words of praise from Brothers Mebane and Hays.

Miss Lucy E. Halbert read a paper on Christian Endeavor Work which was well written and listened to with interest and complimented by Rev. Dr. Hays. More delegates arrived late Friday afternoon and there seems to be a great deal of interest manifested on the part of all.

WRECKED AND WRETCHED LIFE.

Claire De Garmo of Covington a Victim of Cigarette Smoking.

*Claire De Garmo of Covington is among the latest whose life has suffered shipwreck from the insidious cigarette habit.

The young man is a member of one of Covington's respected and substantial families, the members of which hold high and honorable positions socially and in business. The same career lay open to Claire, and the same manly instincts and ambitions seemed to urge him on till he became one of the users of the weed.

From using a few each day he got so that he was miserable unless he used several dozen each day. The young man was employed with the Fred J. Myers Manufacturing Company, and was trusted and respected till the terrible life-sapping effects of the poison began to make themselves visible in a listless, care-for-nothing way of attending to business. He gave up his position and took to the company of youths who, like himself, had lost every interest in life in their devotion to the agent of their destruction. He was reasoned with by parents and friends, but the only apparent result was the strengthening of his attachment to cigarettes and the users of them.

The end came in a shattering of his health several weeks ago. He had the appearance of one almost dead or far gone with wasting disease. The nursing of a devoted mother and the best medical care—and the letting alone of cigarettes—finally brought him around. He was then admonished by his physician, Dr. Hunt, of what he had to expect if he ever resumed the vile habit. This warning controlled him for a few days. Then he plunged into the vice with renewed energy.

It looks as if he had a spark of manliness remaining in his breast to upbraid him for the dishonor he was bringing upon his name. He felt enough ashamed to stay away from home.

Night before last his mother became so anxious over his absence that she started out to find him. He was brought home, having been found wandering aimlessly around town.

He denied using cigarettes, but went to his room, and soon had it full of the poisonous vapor. The smell of it led his parents to suspect what he was doing. He flatly refused to open the door to them, however, till his father threatened to break it in.

Dr. Hunt, his physician, thinks the young man's case is hopeless, or rapidly becoming so, it appearing that his whole system is made torpid and his brain diseased, all due to the constant use of the weed.

The Doctor thinks it useless to try to treat him further while he is allowed at liberty, and he recommends sending him to some asylum or sanitarium. That will probably be done.

The unfortunate's father is Mr. Samuel C. De Garmo, teller in the Northern Bank of Kentucky, and he, with his wife, has the sympathy of all in what is a most harassing affliction.

Little Johnny on Sermons.

New York Herald.—I'd like sermons better if they only said something. Most all preachers I ever heard spent so much time telling what the text didn't mean that when it came to explain what it did mean they had to stop, 'cause everybody's dinner was ready. If school-teachers did that, we'd never get through the 'rithmetic.

THE DEATH OF ELIJAH LLOYD.

A Former Citizen of Mason County Dies Suddenly at Joplin, Mo.

The sad news was received in this city Saturday of the death at Joplin, Mo., of Elijah Lloyd, a former well-known and respected citizen of this county.

Deceased was a son of Elijah Lloyd, Sr. His boyhood and early manhood was spent in the Western part of this county, on Tuckahoe Ridge, where many of his relatives still live. About fifteen years ago he removed to Missouri and became extensively engaged in mining. He made money rapidly and was considered a wealthy man.

He had been married but a few years, his wife being formerly Miss Sallie Holton, daughter of the late W. C. Holton, also of this county. Besides his widow he leaves two children of a tender age. His family are now visiting their relatives in this county, and the sympathy of the whole community goes out to them in their affliction.

The remains will be brought here for burial and will probably arrive some time to-day. The exact date of the funeral could not be learned.

Mr. Lloyd was forty-nine years of age. He was a whole-souled, genial gentleman and his sudden and untimely end will cause sincere sorrow.

CHARLES H. WATTS, manager of the Stowers Furniture Company, Louisville, was crushed under a falling elevator and so badly injured that he died three hours later.

THE new schedule of the C. and O., which went into effect yesterday, makes a few changes at this point. No. 1 now arrives at 6:17 and departs at 6:22 a. m. No. 17 arrives at 10:10 and departs at 10:15 a. m. No. 2 arrives at 9:35 and departs at 9:40 a. m., and No. 18 arrives at 4:40 and departs at 4:45 p. m. These are the only changes. In THE LEDGER's published schedule the time of departure only is given.

THE engagement is announced of Miss Lillian Duckworth, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George K. Duckworth, and one of the beauty buds of the season of '92, and Mr. Milton Tootles of St. Joe, Mo. Mr. Tootles is strictly eligible, a gentleman, young, agreeable, and inherited four millions of money from his father, who was one of the pioneer merchants of the Missouri frontier, and died leaving an immense fortune. Miss Duckworth visited her schoolmate, Miss Lemmon, in St. Joe, a few months ago, and met the young millionaire. He soon followed her to Cincinnati, and his wooing has been of that frank and candid sort that left no doubt as to his intentions, and commends itself to all who "love a lover." The Duckworths have relatives in Maysville.

THE systematic way in which Fincel the Frankfort butcher set his gun trap to slay the person who had pilfered a few dollars from his cash drawer—a rifle carrying a thirty-eight ball, and placed where it was sure to strike its victim in the middle of the body—has aroused a good deal of feeling, and he was arrested charged with murder, and his bond fixed at $5,000 to await the action of the grand jury. The rear window of the shop was left open, as if in invitation to the misguided young fellow. The police had never been notified of the robbery, and no effort made to capture the perpetrator. Had there been a fire the gun might have killed members of the force. A blank cartridge would have frightened the thief and perhaps led to his capture.

JAMES DUDLEY, an old typo, passed through Paris last week, enroute from Texas to his old home at Flemingsburg. Dudley is now in his 70th year, but so well preserved that he looks a score of years younger than that age. He began "manipulating the movable alphabets" in THE EAGLE office at Maysville in 1840, when that paper was edited and owned by Lewis Collins.

A most ingenious system is employed by which the Director of the Suez Canal can tell at a glance of the exact position of all vessels passing through it. A model is placed in the office at Port Said, and the whole canal is worked from headquarters by means of telegraph, the position of each ship being marked by a figure on the model. It is, therefore, easy to arrange for vessels passing each other.

THE Louisville Commercial says the reason that Watterson opposed Cleveland was on personal grounds. It says that Mr. Watterson and Mrs. Cleveland were good friends, and that Mr. Watterson took Mrs. Cleveland to the theater, and one night introduced Nat Goodwin, the comedian, to Mrs. Cleveland which she took as an insult. She reported to Mr. Cleveland and he went for Watterson and that ended their friendship.

THERE were interesting developments in the Chicago breach of promise suit of Jessie Hall against James W. Paige, late of Hartford, Conn., in which the plaintiff claims $950,000 damages. One George H. Hamilton has appeared and claimed that he was married to Jessie Hall July 23d, 1891, at Matewan, N. Y. Hamilton says that Jessie's maiden name was Mollenball, and that she is the daughter of a prelate at a monastery in Houston, Texas.

THE farmers in Adams county, O., are becoming very much discouraged over the appearance of a new disease among horses, and one that is proving fatal to a large number in different parts of the county. The disease is similar to distemper, but a much more running of matter from the nostrils results, and the animal begins to swell very rapidly about the head and neck, resulting in death in about twenty-four hours after being attacked.

In the House of Representatives Saturday the committee appointed to investigate the author of an objectionable article published in THE Louisville Times some weeks ago exonerated John H. Stuart, assistant enrolling clerk, but recommended that he receive the censure of the House for an article he wrote for THE Danville Democrat, reflecting upon Speaker Moore. The committee further recommended that THE Louisville Times be denied a representative, or the courtesy of the floor of the House, and that the Sergeant-at-Arms be directed to exclude any reporter or correspondent of that paper. The report was ordered printed, and made special order for next Thursday.
